DIGITAL ACTIVIST INCLUSION NETWORK

tackling technology together

DAIN and the Digital Activist

The Digital Activist Inclusion Network (DAIN) is an exciting volunteer project working across the East Midlands. DAIN aims to promote digital inclusion by encouraging people to use technology with the help of volunteers (Digital Activists).

We're looking for enthusiastic, unemployed people with experience of ICT (Information and Communication Technology) who can commit a few hours a week. Digital Activists will be open to new opportunities as well as being friendly and approachable.

Digital Activists will work with a nationally recognised charity, the Workers' Educational Association (WEA) and be active in local communities by promoting the use of technology.

What we offer

The DAIN project will offer its volunteers (Digital Activists):

- Experience of working with information and communication technology (ICT).
- Short training course (How to be a Digital Activist) with travel expenses and access to childcare.
- Experience of working in communities with full support and guidance from Digital Activist Coordinators.
- Access to a pool of resources such as laptops and digital cameras.
- The opportunity to be selected for a European study trip.
